LEAGUE NATIONS TAKING ACTION

ABYSSINIA'S CASE TO BE AIRED

INTERNATIONAL COURT MAY JUDGE

Geneva, July 19.
A somewhat curiously worded communique was issued today by the League Secretariat, which is interpreted to mean that arrangements are now complete for a meeting of the League Council, possibly on July 29 or 30, to consider the whole Italo-Abyssinian problem.

It is anticipated that Abyssinia will raise the question of Italy's warlike preparations and Italy's action in obtaining from certain Governments a promise of an arms embargo against Abyssinia.

It will probably be claimed that there can be no justification for such discrimination against a member nation of the League and it is believed that Abyssinia may suggest that the question should be submitted to the Hague Court of International Justice.

On the other hand it is considered probable that Italy will voice her grievances against Abyssinia and make definite charges and suggestions.—Reuter.

BRITISH REQUEST

Rome, July 19.

Italian newspapers to-day published reports from London to the effect that Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador at Rome, has been instructed to ask the Italian Government if it is prepared to make a detailed documentary statement of its case with respect to Abyssinia to be placed before the League of Nations.

Well-informed Italian circles state that up to the moment no such request has been made of the Italian Government.

It is understood that the Italian Government has been sounded upon whether it will discuss the Italo-Abyssinian question with the British and French Governments on the basis of the 1906 treaty dealing with the rights of Abyssinia and the European nations with interests adjoining that territory.

NO COMPROMISE

It is believed that if such discussions are instituted they will be of a diplomatic character, but a general conference is most unlikely.

The Italian Government, it is understood, is most anxious to avoid being drawn into any kind of compromise settlement which would not give to it military and advisory control in Abyssinia.—Reuter.

CLIMATE TAKES TOLL

Rome, July 19.

Seventy deaths from sunstroke and the invaliding home of 2,000 labourers from the Italian colonies, out of a total of 23,000 sent to Eritrea and Italian Somaliland to do the Army's rough work, are reported to-day by the newspaper Azione Coloniale, which is regarded as semi-official for matters concerning colonies.—Reuter.

ABYSSINIA'S FORCES

Paris, July 19.

Observers estimate that Abyssinia will be able to muster approximately half a million men, who, however, are undisciplined guerrilla warriors rather than soldiers.

The Regular Army totals about 15,000 and is unlikely to reach 30,000 within the next few weeks.

It is estimated that Abyssinia has perhaps one million rifles, of which not more than 250,000 are modern repeating rifles, the balance being one-shot weapons, some being antiquated. The fighters therefore need many types of ammunition, which is a great disadvantage.

Moreover, Abyssinia has only about a thousand good machine-guns, six little trench mortars. (Continued on Page 14.)

High Naval Officer Dies In Car Crash

VICE-ADMIRAL
ASTLEY RUSHTON

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1934. Received, July 20, 5.10 a.m.)

London, July 19.
Vice-Admiral Astley Rushton, Commander-in-Chief of the Reserve Fleet, which participated in the Spithead mutiny naval review, was killed outright last night in a motor accident.

The car was wrecked and Vice-Admiral Rushton instantly killed. No-one saw the accident.

Vice-Admiral Rushton had a distinguished naval career. He saw service in the Heligoland, Dogger Bank and Jutland Battles in the Great War, being mentioned in despatches and receiving the C.M.G. decoration. He was Director of Manning at the Admiralty from 1928 to 1930, and commanded the Second Cruiser Squadron in 1931-32, being appointed to the command of the Reserve Fleet last year.—Reuter Special.

A British Wireless message states that Vice-Admiral Rushton was on Tuesday one of the King's guests at a dinner on the Royal Yacht. He commanded the cruiser Southampton, which was the first naval ship to sink a German submarine by gunfire. In 1931 he paid the first post-war naval visit to German waters.

DOUBLES
SUCCESS

London, July 19.

Australia took a lead to-day against Great Britain in the tennis match at Eastbourne by winning the doubles event. The competition is being played on Davis Cup lines.

Quist and Turnbull defeated Hughes and Tuckey in four sets, the score being: 3-6, 6-3, 8-6, 6-4. Australia has now a tremendous advantage, for Crawford, who yesterday beat Fred Perry,

He is travelling with Howard L. Farquar, another well-known flier, who is at present secretary of the British Legation in Mexico City.—United Press.

Britain's great ace and Wimbledon champion, is favoured to beat Bunny Austin with ease.

Perry should win his second match without much trouble, although since Wimbledon his form has not been impressive. McGrath, on the other hand, is playing well, though against Austin he was somewhat slow.

On their present form, the British Davis Cup defenders do not show great promise.—Reuter.

FEDERAL COURTS

Monarchists' Dream Near Fulfilment

VICTORY IN GREEK
CABINET SHUFFLE

PLEBISCITE
IN AUGUST?

Athens, July 19.

The Greek Cabinet has been reshuffled and the result is unquestionably a victory for the monarchist party who are striving for the return of King George to the throne of the realm.

It was at first feared that the Cabinet would resign. But after conversations this evening between Premier Tsaldaris and General Kondylis, the War Minister, it seemed certain that the latter would collaborate with the Government. Consequently, instead of the Cabinet's collective resignation, the re-shuffle was anticipated.

"I shall form a Government according to my own conceptions, I alone being responsible for public affairs," declared M. Tsaldaris following the rumour of the Cabinet upset.

General Kondylis, who favours maintenance of the republic, immediately informed the press that he supported the Government, even if he would not join it. The new Government would be formed during the evening, it was expected.

The new Cabinet was formed to-night without a hitch and according to press reports the plebiscite to decide on the future of the state, whether it should return to the monarchical system or remain a republic, will be held in August.

The re-organisation of the Cabinet took some time, but finally it was completed with M. Tsaldaris remaining Prime Minister, General Kondylis as vice-premier and Minister for War, and M. Maximos as Foreign Minister. The personnel of the new Cabinet is regarded as a victory for the Royalists, making a return of the monarchy more likely.—Reuter.

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1934. Received, July 20, 5.10 a.m.)

London, July 19.
At Blaisy to-day, special interest was centred in the King's Prize, owing to the fact that a 15-year-old Glasgow boy, Ray Barr, entered the second stage.

Barr is the youngest competitor ever to have entered the second stage, having eliminated his tutor and many other crack shots in the first stage.

A large crowd watched Barr's every movement to-day. The lad appeared to be completely unaware of the presence of numerous admirers, but after a good start he failed to qualify for to-morrow's final by one point, scoring 141.

Miss Marjory Foster, the only woman ever to have won the King's Prize, qualified for the final with a score of 144.—Reuter Special.

ALPS ON ELEPHANT

Berne, July 19.

Emulating the great general of Carthage, Hannibal, who led his armies across the Alps against Rome, the American writer, Richard Halliburton, has set out on the back of an elephant for Great St. Bernard Pass.

After covering 50 miles across the Alps from Berne to Aosta, Halliburton proposes to push on, via Pisa, to Rome. The whole ride will take 35 days. Two Indian mahouts are leading the elephant.—Reuter.

TERROR ABROAD IN GERMANY

JEWS MOBBED IN BERLIN

STAHLHELM LEADERS
UNDER ARREST

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1934. Received, July 20, 8 a.m.)

Berlin, July 19.

Another pogrom is feared in Germany. Already there have been violent scenes when mobs attacked and beat Jews. Furthermore, the Nazis are taking drastic action against the Stahlhelm, Germany's great organisation of ex-servicemen, and the measures to be enforced against them were announced to-night.

The Reich, says a newspaper speaking for the Government, will be purged with an iron fist.

The Secret State Police of Silesia, Prussia, have decreed the immediate dissolution of all Steel Helmet (Stahlhelm) organisations in the districts of Breslau, Liegnitz and Oppeln which are the principal towns of the provinces.

The Minister of the Interior of Thuringia has forbidden the wearing of Stahlhelm badges or uniforms or the display of the flag of the organisation. Meeting and parades are also forbidden.

Several high officers of the Stahlhelm in Thuringia have been taken into "protective custody" and transferred to a concentration camp at Sulza for alleged activities against the authority of the Government. The alleged spreading of untrue rumours liable to lower the standard of the state in the eyes of the public and making contemptuous remarks about certain Nazi organisations.—Reuter Special.

JEWS ATTACKED

Berlin, July 19.

Flying squads were again called out to-night to deal with fresh anti-Jewish disturbances. A number of arrests resulted.

Crowds paraded the streets shouting "Down with the Jews," and supposed Jews were dragged from cafes in the West End, and beaten. Others sought safety in flight. The Police kept the crowds moving and dispersed the rioters.

WARNING

The newspaper Angriff publishes a strong editorial against all opposition forces in the country. It declares that the era of patience and the magnanimous attitude of the Government has come to an end and that the capital of the Reich will be purged with an iron fist of all opposition elements.—Reuter.

London, July 19.
British Fascists, Ltd., the organisation of fascists registered as a company in 1924, to "revive the spirit of sane intelligence and patriotism and to uphold the established constitution and prevent the spread of Bolshevism and Communism" is being wound up.

This was a rival of Sir Oswald Mosley's organisation. The Official Receiver at a meeting of creditors and shareholders reported to-day that apparently the organisation had a membership of 400,000 in 1933. Failure was attributed to the difficulty of collecting funds and the competition of rival organisations "to the Fascist cause."—Reuter Special.

KOLYNOS
DENTAL CREAMTIGERS AND TELEPATHYFRIENDSHIP WITH
BOND

Lord Lonsdale, Britain's sporting Peer, who has a famous "way with him" when dealing with animals, revealed some of the secrets of how to get on with lions and tigers and other rather formidable friends.

He was commenting on a report from America that Mr. Clyde Beatty, the animal trainer, is planning to present his lion, tiger, and panther act in London. Mr. Beatty is reported to have said: "I did not dare to take my act to London because I was told that the Royal Humane Society in England will not allow the use of the whip and gun in the cage. Recently Lord Lonsdale saw my act and said he believed things could be arranged if I came to London, so I am planning a visit."

Lord Lonsdale, who sat surrounded by his dogs that seem to understand every word he says to them, shook his head over Mr. Beatty's statement.

"I have not been to America for about 25 years," he told a reporter, "and I have never seen this man's act. Even if I had been in America, unless I knew where the lion had come from and its upbringing—whether it had been bred in captivity or not—I should certainly not have gone near it, because I do not like these acts."

TAME LIONS

"I don't want to give trainers away, but many of these lions that perform are lions born in captivity. That is to say, when they are three days old they are taken away from their mothers and brought up by spaniels, retrievers, or sheep-dogs, in the house where the people live. So they become like domestic puppies."

"I do not mind the lions born in captivity so much. Horses and dogs learn tricks easily, but I don't think lions and tigers and cats, or any of the feline tribe, are suitable subjects for tricks. This is not because they are dangerous, but because they are difficult to deal with, and this very often necessitates cruelty, which I do not like."

Lord Lonsdale was asked if he could explain his own amazing ability to put any kind of animal in a good temper in a moment. Often at horse shows and other functions he has saved the situation by pacifying some angry animal when all other experts have failed.

He recalled that he took charge of the tigers brought back from India by the Prince of Wales and got on very well indeed with them.

HYPNOTIC POWER?

"But it is difficult—indeed impossible—to explain how some can sway animals and others cannot," he said. "Undoubtedly some men have a kind of hypnotic power over animals, and the animals sense this sympathy with them at once. It forms an immediate link of understanding—a kind of telepathic bond."

"Sometimes a man may have this power with dogs, sometimes with horses, and sometimes with any kind of animal. One man may shout and threaten a dog and yet it will not do a thing for him. Another just pets it, and it is his friend at once."

"I have never been hurt by any animal or found one that I could not get on with. But it is difficult to analyse the qualities necessary to get on with them. I have often gone in and had a talk with an old big lion at a circus."

"Then why is it that a dog will bark furiously at one visitor and

ESCALLOPED POTATOES

Six small or four medium-sized potatoes, thinly sliced, one tbspn. minced parsley, salt and pepper, flour, one cup boiling water, one cup condensed milk, two tbspns. butter.

Place a layer of potatoes in a well-buttered baking dish, sprinkle with salt and pepper and minced parsley. Dredge lightly with flour. Add part of butter in small bits. Repeat. Blend condensed milk with water and pour over the potatoes. Dot with remainder of butter. Cover and bake one and one-fourth hours in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) or until the potatoes are tender. Remove the cover the last 15 minutes of baking to brown potatoes lightly on top. Serve from dish in which cooked.

was its tail at another? Somehow it senses whether this link of sympathy is there or not.

"Back in the 'seventies I remember bringing over here a German dentist, who calmly walked up to one of the most savage race-horses in the world. The horse had already been tied up for six days, but the dentist just gave it some water, then put his hand in its mouth, and took out two of its teeth—and after that the horse followed him about in the most friendly way. Yet that horse would have killed any of the stable boys who attempted to do it. Somehow with the dentist that indefinable bond of understanding was present."

Lord Lonsdale chuckled when asked if there was any validity in the old theory that a lion can be kept at bay by staring it unflinchingly in the eyes.

"It would be as well not to rely too much on that method in an emergency," he said.

STOMACH
DISCOVEREDDRINK MORE
MILK

Atlantic City, N.J., June 14. A disease generally blamed on the fast tempo and high tension of modern life is being combated with a successful treatment, Dr. Asher Winkelstein of Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York, told the American Medical Society in a discussion of stomach ulcers.

Dr. Winkelstein, chief of the hospital's gastro-intestinal clinic, said that over 150 victims of stomach ulcers had been cured by the new method during the last four years. In a series of 42 cases treated over a period of 22 months, the ulcers returned in only one case.

Stomach ulcers constitute one of the diseases of modern civilisation. Physicians have been worried over the fact that they seem to be on the increase.

The new treatment devised by Dr. Winkelstein is known as the "continuous milk drip treatment." The patient swallows a rubber tube about one-eighth of an inch in diameter. This tube ends in a small metal capsule which is perforated.

Milk, to each quart of which has been added a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda, is allowed to drip into the stomach through the tube at the rate of 30 drops a minute. This continues day and night, the patient receiving three quarts of milk and three spoons of bicarbonate of soda in the 24 hours. In most cases, the treatment is continued for three weeks.

Dr. Winkelstein said that the patients do not find the treatment uncomfortable. Three quarts of milk a day, he said, is ample nourishment for any man.

Victims of stomach ulcers have unusually high concentrations of hydrochloric acid in their stomachs and it had been believed that the acid caused the ulcers, eating its way into the walls of the stomach. Treatments of stomach ulcers in the past were aimed chiefly at keeping down the amount of acid and of neutralising it with alkalis or milk.

The trouble with these treatments, Dr. Winkelstein said, was that they were given to the patient only during his waking hours. He said that whereas healthy people have no hydrochloric acid in their stomachs during sleeping hours, victims of ulcers have large amounts, consequently the good done by treatment in the daytime was undone by the acid during the night.

It was for this reason, he said, that he set about to devise a method by which the patient could be treated continuously, day and night.

Stomach ulcers occur in men frequently but only rarely in women. Dr. Winkelstein concluded that the ovarian hormone-protected women from stomach ulcers.

He said it was also likely that a glandular upset in which too much prolactin was secreted by the pituitary gland in men might be one of the important factors in causing stomach ulcers in men. The pituitary gland is located at the base of the brain. It is regarded to-day as the master gland of the body.—United Press.

BUSINESS OF "SMEARING"

EARNs CAMPAIGNER
$25,000 A YEAR

AMERICAN POLITICS

Washington, July 4.
The Republican National Committee Treasurer, Mr. George F.
Getz reports the party practically debt-free and ready to start presidential campaign collecting and spending.

Mr. Getz conferred here with Committee Chairman Mr. Henry P.
Fletcher on the campaign budget.
Among his cash assets he exhibited a packet of "Send-a-dime" letters.
An anonymous Republican is mailing mimeographed appeals to all who are "tired of the new deal" to mail
Mr. Getz a "dime" which, in honest money, is ten cents. One enthusiast sent "a quarter", twenty-five cents. The appeal urges the recipient to send a dime to the national committee and request five friends to do the same. Unlike the Denver dime chain letter plan, this one is legal.

Mr. Getz told the United Press the party had about $35,000 in the bank. There is a hold-over deficit of $40,000 from the last campaign but that is covered by pledges. A New York state money raising campaign is expected shortly to provide $80,000 more for the National committee.

If Mr. Fletcher can do as well in some other states he soon will open the presidential sharpshooting with an expanded publicity staff whose first duty will be to prepare a daily and weekly mail news service for country newspapers. There he will undertake to co-ordinate the congressional attack on new deal efforts as Mr. Charles Michelson did for the Democrats when Mr.
Herbert Hoover got into difficulties in 1930-31-32.

Mr. Michelson's typewriter produced speeches and statements in the names of dozens of Democratic statesmen. Some of them read in the newspapers for the first time the blistering comment they had made (through Michelson) on the Hoover administration. At $25,000 a year the Democrats considered Michelson a bargain. Former Chairman John J. Raskob paid the $25,000. Republicans publicly arraigned Michelson as the instigator of a "smear Hoover" campaign—the highest tribute the opposition could pay to a publicity man. Mr.

Fletcher hopes his man can "smear"

HOT WEATHER! DISTRESSING HEADACHES

THE common headache, excessive heat, humidity, fatigue, and lowered powers of bodily resistance are everyday conditions you must watch during the summer months.
'ASPRO' won't remove the heat and humidity, but it will smash up most headaches in 5 to 10 minutes. Simply swallow two or three tablets with a drink of water and lie down for about 10 minutes, if you can. You don't run any risk of injurious after-effects when you take 'ASPRO' for headaches, because it does not contain narcotics or dangerous drugs.

'ASPRO' is the ideal medicine for heat and summer complaints. It will check a cold almost immediately, and there is nothing better than 'ASPRO' to combat the dreaded Dengue. Three tablets taken at once will help to reduce the temperature and settle the nerves. The function of 'ASPRO' is to give quick, safe service to men, women and children. It attacks the seat of the trouble, dispels the cause, because after ingestion in the system it is a solvent of Uric Acid, a powerful germicide, is antiseptic—anti-pyretic, anti-periodic, and anti-fermentative.

CINEMA NEWS

NOTES FROM THE THEATRES

If you are tired of heavy drama in your screen fare and want to see something that will afford you laughs as well as give you that little touch of romance that is the seasoning for any good motion picture production, then you can't afford to miss "Vagabond Lady," the Hal Roach-M-G-M full-length light comedy showing to-morrow at the Queen's Theatre. Director Sam Taylor has turned out what in show business is known as a "natural" in "Vagabond Lady." It has humour, lots of action and romance. And the cast—it's something to write home about—even to the least important of players, Robert Young, always good, is even better in this picture as "Tony," a fun-loving son of a millionaire department store owner, who returns in a sailing ship just in time to upset the marriage plans of his brother "John" portrayed by Reginald Denny. It happens that "John" is desirous of marrying "Jo," the daughter of a responsible head janitor of a store. Evelyn Venable as "Jo" is ideally cast. She gives the part real sincerity having lots of fun in the process. Frank Craven as her father, provides much additional comedy while Gertrude and Gottschalk, English-born comedians, equally effective, Burton Churchill as the diffident "It. D. Spears," owner of the store, turns in his usual workmanlike performance.

"It's a Small World"

Love at first, or even twenty-first sight, is the ordinary recipe for romance, whether fictional or cinematic. Love at first crash—two speed cars—is the impetus that starts a merry mixup of romance and comedy in the new Fox Film picture, "It's a Small World," which starts its engagement at the King's Theatre to-day. A crash up at eighty-miles start, a 16-cylinder love match in a one-horse town. A stream-line motor-car wreck results in a hilarious comedy. Spencer Tracy plays the fresh young lawbreaker in a little traffic row-wow, Wendy Barrie, the English actress who makes her Hollywood bow, plays the head-strong girl from Kansas City who won't be talked to—even by the most persuasive student of Blackwood. The tangle of cars, love and hijinks becomes inextricable in this merry fast-moving comedy, which has been enjoyed hilariously in other cities. In the cast of this Edward Butcher production, which Irving Cummings directed, are, beside the principals mentioned, these able players: Raymond Walburn, Virginia Sale, Astrid Allwyn, Irving Bacon, Charles Sellen, Nick Foran, Belle Daube, Frank McGlynn, Sr., Frank McGlynn, Jr., Bill Gillis, Ed Brady and Harold Minjar.

"Bright Eyes"

One of the finest, most human, most heart-warming films in a decade "Bright Eyes" showing at the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday is Fox film's newest and best vehicle for the amazing talents of Shirley Temple, child star extraordinary. No such sensational performance as Shirley's, no such dramatic and persuasive film story has been seen on a local screen in recent months. "Bright Eyes" has universal appeal in every sense of the word. Swift, human, at times pathetic, at times enormously funny, it is a story which will hold you in its spell from opening sequence to smashing finish. The action of "Bright Eyes" takes place at a large commercial airport near Los Angeles and in a wealthy Pasadena home nearby. James Dunn is once again cast opposite Shirley Allen, Charles Sellen, Dorothy Christy, Jane Withers and Theodore von Litz.

"The Age of Innocence"

Is the world better, or worse—now that the strict conventions of the Mid-Victorian era have presumably vanished? That question RKO-Radio's poignant drama, "The Age of Innocence," starring Irene Dunne and John Boles, does not undertake to answer. "The Age of Innocence" was adapted for the screen from Edith Wharton's Pulitzer Prize novel of the same title, which created a terrific sensation in New York society a few years ago, making the celebrated author a heroine to many, and anathema to others. Miss Dunne and Boles appear as "unrequited lovers" and are said to give the most moving dramatic performances of their careers, not excepting their mutual triumph in "Back Street." The supporting cast includes Julie Haydon, and five famous players from the New York Theatre Guild—Lionel Atwill, Helen Westley, Laura Hope Crews, Herbert Ross and Edith Van Cleve. The film is now at the Star Theatre.

"Baby Face Harrington"

If you like to laugh run, don't walk to the Queen's Theatre where "Baby Face Harrington," the funniest film of the year is showing for the last four times. And not only funniest, but most original. It has no parallel nor comparison because its star, Charles Butterworth, is unique among comedians. This is Butterworth's first leading role, in a picture especially written for him. Although the picture principally concerns the exploits of the twinkling Butterworth, Gita Merkel shares honours as his wife. They make the perfect comedy team, these two, each with a different technique, each balancing the other, yet both in perfect harmony. The supporting cast is especially well selected. Nat Pendleton plays another of his famous gangster roles, Ruth Selwyn returns to the screen after a year's absence in the effective role of Dorothy, Harvey Stephens, whom we recently saw in "Evelyn Prentice" and "After Office Hours" is again suave and villainous. Eugene Paulette is perfectly at home in the role of "Uncle Harry," small-town police sergeant. Donald Meek plays the heartless Skinner, while Robert

Husband Persuaded Her to Take Kruschen

By following her husband's advice, this woman took off 22 lbs. of her excess fat. Telling of her experience, she writes:—

"A year ago I was troubled with rheumatism, nervousness and other complaints. And I got so fat that I weighed 11 st. 7 lbs. After taking Kruschen Salts, before I began, I weighed 11 st. 7 lbs. After taking Kruschen for a short time the rheumatism was less painful, my nerves got stronger, and my step lighter. Then I knew that Kruschen was doing me good, so I persevered with it and got my weight down to 9 st. 3 lbs. a reduction of 22 lbs. of unwanted fat. I am not boasting when I say that I feel younger and more active, have a much better figure, and am healthier than I have been for years."—(Mrs.) J. N.

Kruschen is a blend of six mineral salts which assist the internal organs to throw off each day those waste products that would otherwise accumulate in the form of fatty tissue.

MISSION TO CANTON

LEITH ROSS REPORT NEEDED FIRST

London, July 19.

In view of the imminent departure of Sir Frederick Leith Ross to China it is advisable to await his report before considering the question of sending an industrial mission to Canton, said Colonel Colville of the Overseas Trade Department in reply to a question in the House of Commons by Mr. Neil Maclean, Labour member for Gwynedd-Idwal.

ANGLO-ITALIAN TIES ARE CRACKING

...and they are hurling bitter invective at us.

There is not much room in this materialistic world for sentiment and idealism. However much we may deplore the prospect of war between Italy and Abyssinia, have we the power to prevent it if political machination has decreed it? And in any almost inevitably futile attempt to do so really worth the risk of unleashing on humanity another European war.

Provocative newspaper headings and impulsive platform speeches will not avail one iota to stem the tide of destiny. Our best policy is to avoid recrimination, trust in Geneva, and keep our inkpots dry.

Livingston and Eddie Nugent are handsome additions to the cast.

"Woman in The Dark"

Melvyn Douglas, who portrays the Machiavellian Robson in Dashiell Hammett's thrilling "Woman in The Dark," is probably one of the most versatile actors of the stage or screen. Star of the recent Broadway hit, "No more Ladies" Douglas has divided his time between Broadway and Hollywood. He plays leading man or suave villain with equal success. Gloria Swanson insisted on having him for her lead in the screen production of "To-night or Never." It was while he appeared in the same part on the stage that Helen Gahagan, who played opposite him became his wife. The poster of screen luminaries who have been in pictures with him reads like a veritable Hollywood "Who's Who." Ann Harding, Claudette Colbert, Lupe Velez and Greta Garbo are only a few of those whom he has worked. In "Woman in The Dark," coming to the King's Theatre on Tuesday, Douglas is at his best as the insistent villain who feels he has a claim on Louise Loring, played by Fay Wray. The interesting outcome of this gripping drama is in the approved Dashiell Hammett manner. Ralph Bellamy plays opposite Fay Wray in this Select Production for RKO-Radio release.

LOOSE REASONING

According to the Daily Mail, Italy's successful colonisation in Africa is being praised in certain high quarters, in which it is admitted that Abyssinia would benefit from an Italian mandate. The suggestion underlying this report is one to which no Power which has regard for the rights of weaker nations could possibly subscribe. We have encountered the same viewpoint from time to time concerning Japan's policy in China, the argument being that China would be better governed if she were taken under the wing of Japan, even by the process of annexation. This outlook is one which overlooks the vital point of the rights of nations to control their own destinies. It might conceivably be argued that many of the smaller European nations would be better governed by Britain than they are to-day, but, even admitting the point, there could be no possible justification for invasion and occupation on such a ground. To bring the issue down to a finer point, Jones might be able to run Smith's business better than Smith himself does, but Smith would naturally very much resent any move by Jones to take forcible possession of his shop or office! Thus it is, when we come to consider the cases of such nations as Abyssinia and China, heed has to be paid to the feelings of the people of these countries, who obviously would object to interference with their national integrity. These are elementary points, but it seems that they need stressing at the moment, when much loose thought prevails regarding the rights of smaller nations in the face of aggression from bigger countries. Another suggestion which has been put forward in the Italo-Abyssinian crisis is that Italy should be invited to arraign Abyssinia as unfit to be a member of the League of Nations, due to her alleged persistence in maintaining the slave trade, "thereby legalising an Italian-Abyssinian war." Here again we encounter confused thought. The slave question cannot possibly be brought in as justifying Italy in making war on the Abyssinians. The two issues are quite distinct and separate, and we cannot conceive of the League Council lending itself to such a subterfuge as a means of refraining from action in the

NOTES OF THE DAY

ANGLO-GERMAN TREATY

Some understanding is better than no understanding. This is the line of reasoning which has been followed in the Anglo-German naval negotiations, observes a contemporary. Moreover, the British Government has made clear that it hopes the ratios worked out between it and Germany will prove to be a groundwork on which all naval powers can erect understandings looking toward limitation of fighting fleets. Whether the British Government has bought its understanding with Germany at too high a price is a question not yet to be answered. France is displeased by the British action; Russia is not expected to receive news of the agreement joyfully, either. In Britain, too, there is at least surprise that the new Government committed the nation to the 100-35 ratio for ships, and the 100-45 ratio for submarines, which also accords to Germany the "right" to build up to equality with Britain's undersea arm in certain circumstances, under parliamentary approval. One understanding has been reached; a number of misunderstandings are simultaneously confronted.

NO RESTRICTIONS

Yet surely it is possible on the whole to approve the step taken by the British Government, we suggest. Germany had already openly cast aside the restrictions imposed on her by the Versailles Treaty. The fact of her rearmament—if not the legal right—had already been acknowledged. But only reprimands from the Versailles signatories had so far been forthcoming where frank efforts to meet a new condition were obviously and urgently required. The obstacle apparently was an adamant attitude on the part of France, and some other nations, against any modification of the peace of 1919. Actually the obstacle was a growing apprehension in Europe over possible intentions of the new German Government. Those intentions have been somewhat clarified since the meeting of the powers at Stresa resulted in the League censure of German rearmament. Chancellor Hitler's speech on May 21 was widely considered to offer real grounds for co-operation toward European stability. Great Britain has now taken a lead in what should become a wider practical exploration of these grounds. The very real concern which other countries may feel as a result of Britain's single-handed acceptance of Germany's violation of the Versailles Treaty cannot be passed over lightly. The British Government has some difficult rows to hoe in the next few weeks. Then, too, the unfortunate fact that arms agreements which provide for increasing armaments are easier for governments to reach than those which would impose decreases is once more illustrated in the Anglo-German treaty. Yet this agreement should encourage those who are convinced that peace can be better established by efforts at international understanding than by insistence on restrictions imposed because of fear.

NO DEBT TO PRISONERS

"We don't owe them a cent," a member of the Prison Board is reported to have declared in referring to the recent outbreak at the Kansas state penitentiary. The remark is unfortunate, coming, as it does, from an official of an institution rather notorious for mutinous riots. It is coupled with the statement of the prison officials that no concessions had been made to the demands of the rioters. Those demands were for dismissal of the prison physician and for "better cooked food." With complete detachment as to the reasonableness or unreasonableness of the requests, impartial onlookers may be permitted to doubt as to whether the attitude indicated by "We don't owe them a cent" is the best way to run a corrective institution. It contrasts rather harshly with modern penological views. The inmates of the Kansas state prison may be more refractory than those in other prisons. They may demand cooking incompatible with proper discipline. Be that as it may, society, in simple humanity and for its own protection, does owe them the incarceration something more than is implied in the Prison Board member's remark.

crisis which has arisen. However the issues may be viewed, there is no call whatever for armed invasion by Italy. The dispute is one eminently suitable for adjustment by pacific means, and if efforts to get it so adjusted should fail, we may well despair of the outlook for the future of small countries threatened by the ambitions of more aggressive nations.

ANGLO-ITALIAN TIES ARE CRACKING

By "AN OLD STAGER"
In "The Edinburgh Evening Dispatch"

It is very distressing to those who sincerely desire to see peace on earth and good will amongst men that a long-standing Anglo-Italian fraternity should now be breaking up most tragically. Since the days of Nelson, perhaps since those of Ancient Rome, there has been a strong under current of sympathy between Britain and Italy. Some people overlook the fact that the Roman occupation of this country, which gave us many other good things besides fine roads, endured longer than has our paternal rule of India.

But now, within historically so brief an interval since British and Italian troops shared trenches and billets in the Great War we are suddenly by far the most unpopular people throughout all Italy. Not only are we accused of supplying arms and munitions to the Abyssinians, with whom Italy now has the ominous beginnings of a quarrel, but some gifted Italian journalists do not scruple to describe Abyssinia as our hired assassin.

Absurd and seemingly incredible though these charges may appear to us, they are being strenuously drummed into Italian ears and by a Press propaganda which appears all the more sinister since we know it to be subject to the most rigorous official censorship. I see, however, that the Duce is now said to have ordered the campaign of the newspapers to stop.

In an awkward and perhaps dangerous emergency it behoves us to keep our heads. In honesty we must admit that the attitude towards Italy of a certain section of the London stunt Press has done much to invite some retaliation.

Contemptible though it undoubtedly is, and so regarded by even its own more intelligent readers, the stunt Press possesses unfortunate potentialities for mischief.

There are occasions when even the most liberal observer must have regret that we have no sort of Press censorship in this country. Though such a regret would never be born if journalism displayed sagacious responsibility instead of brainless sensationalism and thug mentality.

It is just as well, in the unhappy circumstances, that we should sincerely endeavour to see the other fellow's point of view. There is not an exact, but nevertheless a close, parallel between Italy's position now and our own in the Boer trouble. Just as memories of Majuba were still ranking in this country when we had our dispute with President Kruger, so the Italians are even yet smarting a little under the memory of Adowa. Even the great War, in which Italy played no inglorious role on the side of the Allies, has not effaced entirely recollection of the disaster to Italian arms at Adowa, nor of the treatment accorded to the Italian dead, wounded, and prisoners. The Italians find themselves, as they believe, provoked by their old enemies, the Abyssinians, in a series of frontier affrays, as to the rights and wrongs of which we in this country have only the most imperfect means of judging.

If we recall the fervour of popular enthusiasm, the wave of slightly jingoistic patriotism, that swept this country at the time of the South African War, and the determination to "wipe something off the slate," we ought to be a little tolerant, or at any rate understanding, of how Italians are feeling just now about Abyssinia.

We bitterly resented the pro-Boer sympathies which were prevalent on the Continent then, and the Kaiser's historic telegram to Kruger did more to create anti-German feeling here than all the German battleships laid down in the Kiel yards. We did not at all relish the under-dog sympathies of some of our European neighbours.

This recollection should make us a little cautious how we explode against Italy in her belligerent top-dog mood with Abyssinia. It would be so fatally easy at this juncture to add substance to the Continental superstition about John Bull's hypocrisy. But no such considerations as these, of course, intrude on the shallow-pated mentality of our Fleet Street stunt Press. They are far too busy forgetting what they themselves said yesterday to think of remembering anything that happened even a few years ago.

We must all hope and pray that no serious trouble ensues between Italy and Abyssinia. Our attitude should be severely and impartially neutral, except in its steadfast advocacy—within legitimate limits and by right means—of peaceful settlement if possible. Anything more unfortunate than a hectoring patriotism or a bullying dictatorship, it would be impossible to imagine. Olive branches discharged from high-explosive catapults will never advance the cause of international amity or help to raise the topmost summits of Geneva.

One strange manifestation may be noted. Those who are now most strenuous in giving voice to desperate counsels, even to the extent of armed and punitive action against any aggressor are, precisely the same people who most fervently oppose any strengthening of our naval and military resources. Apparently they want us to go peace-crusading with other people's armies. This is too illogical, and also impracticable, to call for serious comment.

Indeed, this rift within the Anglo-Italian lute has its very obvious moral for everybody. That moral is that international friendships are, viewed in any big historical perspective, the flimsiest kind of pie-crust. Until we can discover some better way of regulating the world's complex affairs, or human nature at home and abroad can be effectually subdued to the useful and the good, and the old selfish, greedy, fighting Adam whipped out of it, it is more prudent to put our trust in our own reasonably strong right hand than in any transient international entente.

Friends and allies of to-day may become the estranged and embittered potential foes of to-morrow. In 1918 we were hailed by the Italian people as gallant comrades in arms. They threw flowers before the marching khaki battalions. Now we are accused of subsidising

RAILWAY EXPERT
RETIRINGMR. C. D. LAMBERT GOING HOMEACTIVE CAREER AND
WAR SERVICE

Hongkong will be losing one of its most popular residents and the Government a most efficient and valued servant on Tuesday, when Mr. Charles Douglas Lambert, Chief Mechanical Engineer of the British section of the Kowloon-Canton Railway, goes on leave prior to retirement, after 25 years of official life in the Colony. Mr. Lambert, who holds the rank of Major in the Regular Army Reserve of Officers and Ordnance Mechanical Engineer in the Royal Army Ordnance Corps, is a member of the Institute of Mechanical Engineers, of the Institute of Transport and of the Institute of Locomotive Engineers.

Accompanied by his wife, Mr. Lambert is leaving the Colony by the s.s. Tjibadak for home via Bali, Java, Australia, New Zealand, the Panama Canal, Havana and Jamaica, taking five months over the trip. Of a most genial disposition and a man of sterling qualities, Mr. Lambert has, like his wife, made a host of friends in the Colony, who will keenly regret their departure and wish for them many years of happy retirement in the Old Country.

SON OF DOCTOR

Born on April 5, 1885, son of Dr. W. O. Lambert, J.P., M.D., L.R.C.P., L.R.C.S., Sunderland, Mr. Lambert was educated at Dartington Grammar School and Emanuel School, Wandsworth Common, London. He received his technical education at Durham College of Science, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and was a premium apprentice with the London North Eastern Railway at the locomotive works in Gateshead, on-Tyne and Darlington, under Mr. Wilson Wordsell and the late Sir Vincent Raven. Here he had experience in all departments of the railway workshops and in the drawing office for three years on locomotive design. He left the L.N.E.R. in 1909 and joined Messrs. Hargreaves, engineers and rope manufacturers as outside representative.

Mr. Lambert's association with Hongkong began in November, 1910, when he was appointed acting Locomotive Superintendent of the Kowloon-Canton Railway. In 1916, he was seconded for military service in the Great War, being given a commission as full Lieutenant Ordnance Mechanical Engineer. After attending a course on gunnery at the Ordnance College, Woolwich, he was in October, 1916, appointed O.M.E. Northern Command on coast defence and anti-aircraft guns at the Headquarters, Plymouth Castle.

WAR SERVICE

In November, 1916, Mr. Lambert went to France as O.M.E. to the Fifth Corps, Fifth Army, being in charge of repairs to all classes of field guns. He was promoted Captain in 1917 and appointed O/C Siege Artillery, upkeep and repairs, in the same Corps. He was in the Fifth Army retreat on the Somme in the spring of 1918, and in July of that year was promoted Major and O/C Railway Mounted Gun Workshop at Calais, where he had charge of erection, upkeep, repairs and calibration of all guns on railway mountings for the whole of the British Expeditionary Force. Mr. Lambert was transferred home from France in December, 1918, and appointed acting Chief Ordnance Mechanical Engineer to the Northern Command.

In November, 1919, Mr. Lambert returned to Hongkong and resumed his position on the railway as Locomotive Superintendent. He proceeded to the United States on behalf of the Railway in 1921 to superintend the building of rail motor coaches, and in 1923 he was appointed Chief Mechanical Engineer, a post which he has held ever since.

GOLD IN ALASKA

OLD HAND STRIKES
A VEIN

Palmer, Alaska, July 18. The discovery of gold on one of the farms of the New Deal colonization project in the Mantanuska Valley served today to allay some of the discontent of the homesteaders.

Anton Anderson, a veteran of the early gold-strike days of Alaska territory, struck a direct vein in digging a water well. Anderson said the panning showed value, but other "sour doughts" claimed that the area had been prospected thoroughly and little gold would be found there. United Press.

played a leading part in the technical side of the development of this Government undertaking, for which he has been wholly responsible, and under his control of the mechanical department the services have been vastly improved. It is worthy of mention that he designed the engines which have been so successfully employed in hauling the fast expresses to Canton, in the construction of which he assisted whilst at home in 1925.

It is also worthy of note that in 1921, when the Government decided to adopt mechanical transport, Mr. Lambert gave lectures and instruction to the police traffic staff in running, upkeep and repairs to all classes of motor vehicles.

Mr. Lambert has always taken a keen and active interest in all aspects of mechanical transport and was one of the first to own a car on the mainland. In fact, he had the first Morris Oxford car to be imported into the Colony.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

Apart from his Government service, Mr. Lambert has figured largely in the social life of the Colony. He has been a member of the original Committee of the Hongkong Automobile Association and of the Hongkong Flying Club, whilst as a Committee member of the Royal Hongkong Golf Club for many years he rendered invaluable services. In this latter connection, he introduced mechanical machines for cutting and keeping the greens in trim, and for a number of years has been convener of the Failing Clubhouse. Quite recently, in recognition of his services, he was made a Life Member of the Club.

Mr. Lambert holds the General Service and Victory Medals for service in the European War, and was recently awarded the King's Silver Jubilee Medal.

MME. MARTHE HANAU
PASSESFRANCES MOST FAMOUS ADVENTRESS

Paris, July 19. Madame Marthe Hanau, known as the "Woman Wizard of French Finance," died at Fresnes prison today. —Reuter.

Marthe Hanau, the French adventress, was born in Paris in 1886, as the daughter of a draper. Even as a girl she was clever at business with very persuasive ways. In 1906 when she and her mother were running a linen shop she met and married Lazare Bloch, son of a Lille industrialist. Having failed, his wife started a secret shop. She created a perfume for midwives and her business did so well that she began to manufacture scent and was able to live in the Avenue des Champs Elysees. During the War, she found it desirable to sell her business and her next move was to exploit the War by selling what she called the "soldier's tube," supposed to contain a mixture of rum and coffee. This was considered a swindle and she and her husband were fined several times. In 1919 she started a soup business which failed.

Her Confederate

Then she met the wealthy Mme. Joseph and her career as a financier began. In 1920 she obtained a divorce from her husband, but they remained friends and business partners. Financed by Mme. Joseph, she started the Gazette des Nations, which was to save the franc, to rehabilitate French credit and currency. Its actual purpose was to induce the public to buy the shares which were being sold by Mme. Hanau's bucket shop. Then she founded Gazette des Nations which proclaimed its intention of working for universal peace. Leading statesmen such as Mussolini and Kellogg abroad and Poincare, Briand and Luchaire at home gave interviews and under cover of these distinguished names, more customers for the bucket shop were recruited. In 1928, she presided at a breakfast given to journalists by Pierre Audibert, former chef de cabinet of De Monzie, to foster international understanding by means of the press. She had finance companies with a capital of £136,000,000, over seven agents in the provinces and £4,000,000 invested with her. At one time her personal fortune was said to have been £64,000. A tremendous worker, she rose early, but even in office hours was a great consumer of champagne and cigarettes. Later in the day she and Mme. Joseph frequented the bars and night restaurants of Montmartre, gambled at Deauville and were joint hostesses at lavish entertainments.

The Crash

Late in 1928 the crash came. According to one version, it was precipitated by her quarrel with Mme. Joseph, who withdrew from the business. Another is that the great banks took action to stop an issue by her of 8 p.c. debentures to the tune of £1,360,000. According to herself she was being blackmailed by G. Anquetil of La Rumeur. She refused to pay and he brought about the collapse of the Gazette des Nations and her arrest. In 1930, he was given 1 year's her. The result of the crash was that her clients appeared to have lost many millions of francs and several of them committed suicide.

It came out at the inquiry that she had subsidised various papers to boom her business and that she had offered the Journal £8,000 and a £120,000 share in her undertakings. If it would stop its campaign against her—an offer indignantly refused.

Personality

While under detention she went on hunger strike. She had to be forcibly fed and it took 8 male nurses to overpower her. Then she escaped from the hospital and proceeded to St. Lazare Prison, declaring that she had returned because she did not want to undergo any more violent treatment. Bail of £5,400 was found and she was released. She faced 5,287 creditors in September and by sheer force of personality won their support to her proposal to meet her liabilities in full within 5 years. Her trial did not begin until October 30. At the end of her two days' speech in her own defence she was complimented by one judge. She was given two years' imprisonment and fined £24. But, as her detention had lasted 16½ months she had only 7½ to serve. Against this sentence she appealed. No sooner was she at liberty pending her appeal than she started a new bank and new periodicals, Scoutez-Moi and Fortes, in which she made violent attacks on Paris banks. These, however, suddenly ceased for some reason. In April 1932, she was accused of having stolen a secret police report

"DUD" AMMUNITION

LONDON, July 18. American ammunition supplied in the Great War was inferior stuff, according to Lord Marley, when giving evidence before the Armaments Trade Commission.

In the early days of the War, when I was an artillery commander," he said, "we always took care to be as far off as possible when American shells were being used, as they were always bursting in the muzzles of the guns, instead of when they struck the enemy."

about herself from the office of the Finance Minister Flandin. Mme. Hanau denied theft, declaring that there had "simply been a leakage at police headquarters" and asserted that she was being persecuted. She was proceeded against for illicit market operations but the trial was postponed from month to month until the Stavisky scandal aroused public indignation and it was recalled that her case had never been dealt with. Eventually in June, 1934, she was sentenced to 6 months' imprisonment and a fine of 3,000 francs, while her former confederate Bloch was given eight months and a similar fine.

PROFESSIONALS TROUNCE AMATEURS AT CRICKET

RESULTS AT A GLANCE

COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP

Yorkshire (459 for 8 wickets, dec.) beat Northants (289 and 94) by an innings and 76 runs.
Sussex (480) beat Essex (124 and 218) by an innings and 118 runs.
Lancashire (106 and 227 for 8 wickets, dec.) beat Gloucestershire (68 and 154) by 108 runs.
Notts (336 and 8 for 0 wicket) beat Hampshire (205 and 138) by ten wickets.

FRIENDLY MATCHES

Players (251 for 9 wickets, dec. and 57 for 1 wicket) beat Gentlemen (218 and 89) by nine wickets.
Leicestershire (246 and 268 for 1 wicket) beat Sir Lindsay Parkinson's Eleven (186 and 327) by nine wickets.

VICTORY BY NINE WICKETS

MATCH PLAYED AT LORD'S

YORKSHIRE STILL IN LEAD

London, July 19. Professional cricketers, playing under the designation of Players, met out a severe trouncing to the Gentlemen in their match at Lord's, winning by a margin of nine wickets.

The Gentlemen's defeat was due to a second innings collapse after they had made 218 in their first attempt and the Players had declared at 251 for nine wickets. When the amateurs were all sent back for 89, the Players had no difficulty in winning and scored 57 for the loss of one wicket.

Yorkshire, the present leaders of the county championship, remain at the top of affairs by a comfortable victory over Northamptonshire at Harrogate where the Northerners won by an innings and 76 runs.

Without any member of the team scoring a century, Yorkshire rattled up a total of 459 runs for the loss of eight wickets when the declaration was applied.

Sibbles (Lancs. v. Gloucester) 4 for 18

Of eight wickets when the declaration was applied.

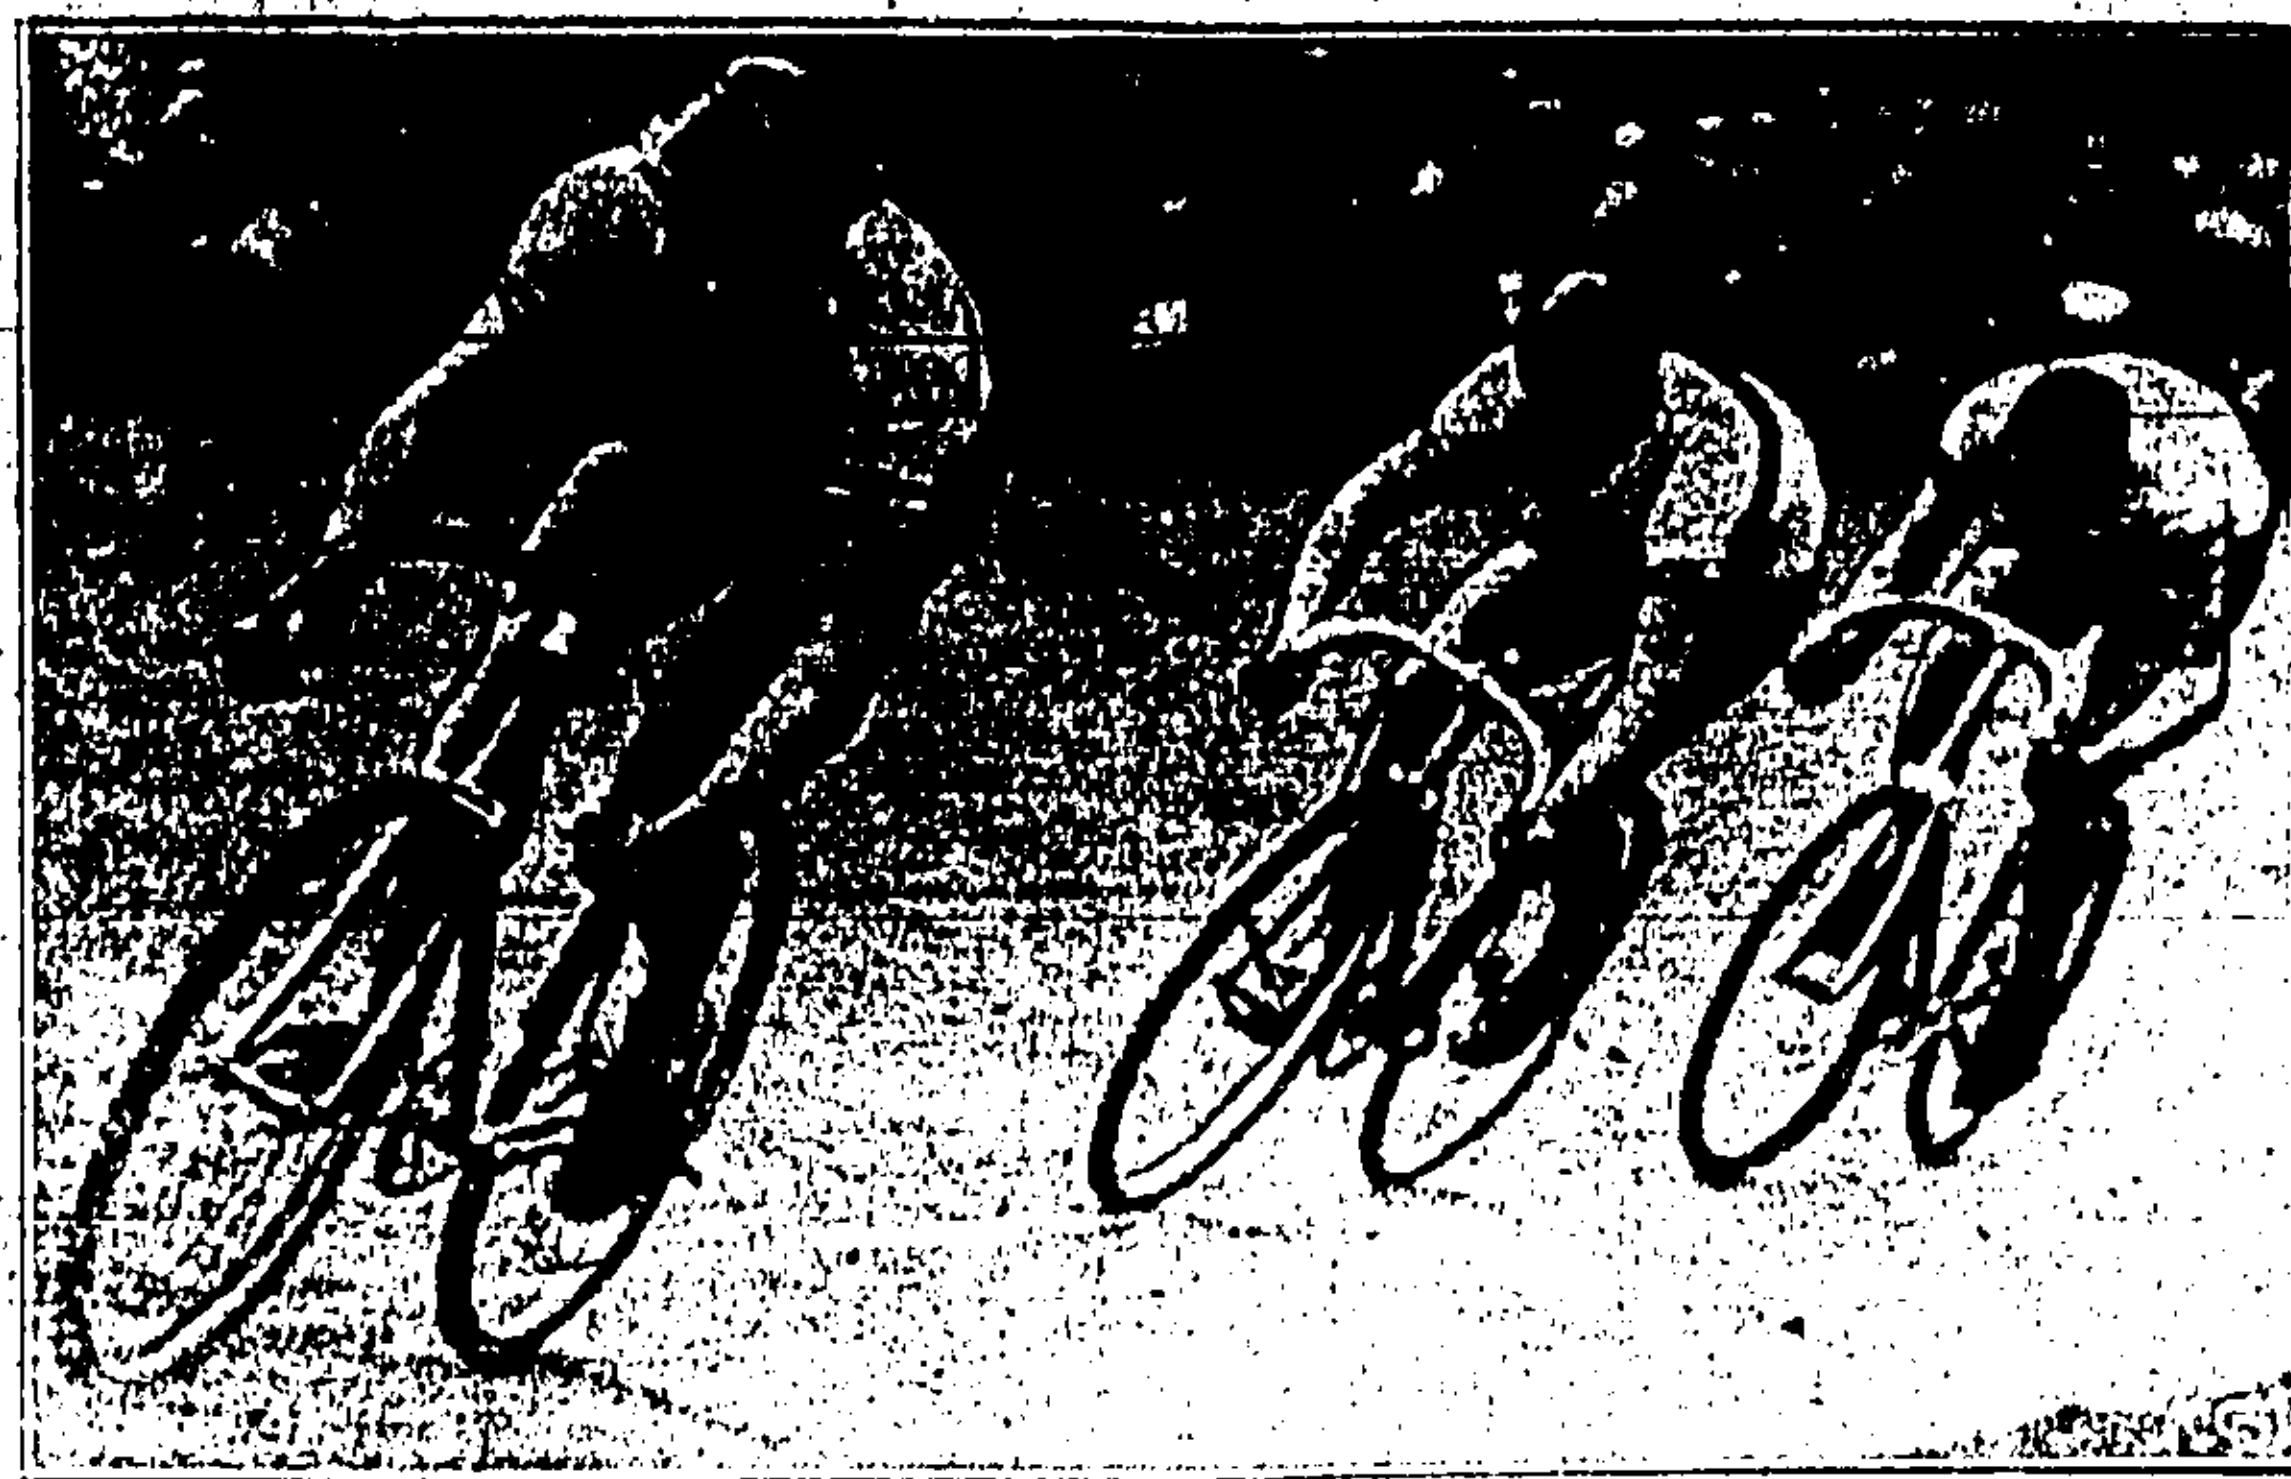

Northants were dismissed for 289 and then, in the follow-on, for 94. Verity took five of the wickets for 20 runs.

Sussex were also engaged in a high scoring innings, the side making 460 runs before the last wicket fell in their match against Essex at Hove, where the hosts won by an innings and 118 runs.

Of their total of 460, John Langridge compiled 195 before dismissal and Greenwood had 115 runs to his credit.

Tate and J. Cornford brought about the collapse of Essex who were dismissed for 124 and 218.

Bicycle racing has grown greatly in popularity in recent years and has spread to many countries. In England especially the sport is keenly contested and is watched by enthusiastic crowds. Here is the finish of a race at Herne Hill, with E. W. Higgins, British Empire Games champion, winning the international sprint match from Tony Merckens of Germany and Dennis Horn, British star. Merckens is pedalling into second place, with Horn taking third position with some speedy work.

BOXING TITLE RETAINED

McAVOY DEFEATS BURKE

OCCASIONAL BOOS

(By Fred Dartnell)

Manchester, June 24. The King's Hall, Belle Vue, was like a Turkish bath to-night. Most of the 5,000 spectators sat in their shirt-sleeves to see Jack McAvoy, of Rochdale, beat Al Burke, of London, on points over 15 rounds and so retain his British middleweight title.

McAvoy fought with the confidence that becomes a champion, and his barrage of punches with both hands to the body left Burke mostly concerned in defence.

McAvoy fights with some quaint mannerisms. He bites his thumbs, not in the Shakespearean sense, and owing to some nasal weakness he maintains a snorting crescendo of defence.

BURKE SPRINGS A SURPRISE

It was a regular one-horse show for the first three rounds, with McAvoy forcing the pace and piling up points galore. Towards the end of the third Burke staged a desperate rally which rather took his man by surprise.

He was leaning back on the ropes in a crumpled state when suddenly he lashed out fiercely with both hands, one good right catching McAvoy flush on the chin.

Then the bell intervened, and later on McAvoy continued to show up the rather timid passivity of the southerner. He found it difficult now to penetrate a crab-like defence, and Burke took dozens of punches on elbows crossed over his stomach.

By the end of the tenth round McAvoy held a long lead, but the bout had grown very wearisome, with

CARNERA "OUT"

ANNOUNCED INTENTION TO RETIRE

LOUIS TOUGHER THAN BAER

New York, June 26. Primo Carnera is to retire from the ring.

This announcement, regarded as inevitable after his crushing defeat by Joe Louis, the Negro "tiger" boxer, in New York last night, was made by the Italian giant to-day.

"This Louis," he exclaimed, "is much tougher than Baer. I want no more of his punches. I quit the ring now."

Carnera takes with him into retirement a final purse of $18,000. For thrashing him Louis receives $11,000.

The victory of the Negro gave rise to the wildest scenes of enthusiasm in Harlem, where the black population of New York is concentrated. Fifty thousand people swarmed through the streets singing and shouting with exultation.

"I'll fight anybody," declared Joe Louis as with his managers today he discussed the possibility of fighting Max Baer or Schmeling in September before entering the lists against Jimmy Braddock next year as contender for the world's heavyweight championship.

MANY TITLES

The brutal beating he inflicted on Carnera last night, when he punched him three times to the floor in one round and made him look like a beleaguered steer, his eyes staring, his body swaying against the ropes, has earned for this 21-year-old Negro a crown composed of a delightful variety of titles.

He is described as "a tiger who attacked and killed a huge hippopotamus," and more popularly as "the robot of the ring."

The referee was terse and enthusiastic in his opinion. "Joe," he said, "fights like a man with a hundred years' experience."

Dempsey, who was seated near me, gave a more cautious verdict. "A terrific hitter," he said, "but he needs seasoning. One day he will be a marvel."

Other experts crowding the ring-side seats were full of wonder at the speed and force of the Negro's blows and at his perfect defence, but commented on the fact that he still has to show his capacity for taking punishment. Carnera gave him none.

McAvoy firing somewhat against a smothering policy that never wavered, there were occasional boos from the crowd, but these could hardly have been directed against McAvoy who was doing his best.

In the 12th round Burke cut loose with some desperate punches, but quickly resumed the passive role, and the end came with McAvoy winner of a fight not worthy of the title.

JACKIE BROWN DISAPPOINTS

Jackie Brown (world fly-weight champion) won his ten rounds bout with Ernest Weiss (Austria) on points, but he did not gain a lot of credit; there was only a narrow margin.

Weiss appeared to be influenced more by the reputation than the actual form of the winner. In every round Brown would make some of his electrical rallies, but to those who watched the exchanges closely it was clear that the English champion was not hitting with such power and accuracy as usual.

At no time was he like the real Brown. The verdict in his favour was not exactly popular.

DAVIS CUP ZONE FINAL TO-DAY

GERMANY & U.S. TO MEET

AMERICAN TEAM ANNOUNCED

The United States plays Germany in the Davis Cup inter-zone final, beginning to-day at Wimbledon.

That was determined when the Germans swept through the last two singles matches of the European zone finals with Czechoslovakia at Prague, clinching the series four matches to one.

At the same time Joseph Wear, the United States' non-playing captain, announced that Wilmer Allison, Don Budge, Sidney Wood and Johnny Van Ryn will meet the Germans, eliminating Gene Mako, fifth member of the squad.

Either the Americans or Germans thus will battle England, the defending champion, for possession of the coveted international tennis trophy at Wimbledon one week hence.

Wear, announcing the lineup for this round, seemed fairly confident his charges can take the measure of the Germans, even dropping two matches to the able Von Cramm, but was not so confident the United States will succeed in lifting the cup from England.

"Fred Perry and Bunny Austin are always very good," he said, "Our boys will have to be at the top of their form and Austin and Perry a little bit off, if we are to beat them."

Wear indicated that the veteran 31-year-old Allison and Sidney Wood would undertake the singles assignments against Von Cramm and Henkel, while the towering, youthful red-haired Budge will team with Johnny Van Ryn in the doubles.

The Germans are in an unaccustomed position in hiding for the post of Davis Cup challenger, displacing Australia and France. They beat the Australians after the latter had disposed of France.

THE PAIRING

Wimbledon, July 18. The tennis battle between the United States and Germany for the right to challenge England for the Davis Cup starts with two singles battles, Don Budge against Heinrich Henkel and Wilmer Allison against Gottfried von Cramm.

Sunday will be an off day. Allison and John van Ryn will meet Von Cramm and Kay Lund in the doubles on Monday. The other matches will be played Tuesday.—United Press.

Southend United have signed James Nelson, the Newcastle and Scottish international right back. Nelson joined Newcastle in 1930 from Cardiff City, and captained the Newcastle team that won the F.A. Cup in 1932. He played for Scotland against Wales and Ireland in 1925 and against England in 1928.

The number of votes sent by post for the retiring directors was 700, against 117 for the defeated candidates.

At times during the annual meeting of the Tottenham Hotspur Football Club last month uproar prevailed between rival sections—the loyal shareholders and members of the Shareholders' Association—but the proceedings terminated with the malcontents assuring the directors of their loyalty.

On a show of hands the two retiring directors, Messrs. George Cox and Wagstaffe Simmons, were re-elected by 81 votes to 44 received by their opponents, Messrs. Grimkitt and Berry, who were nominated by the Shareholders' Association.

SELECTING BOWLS RINKS

Skips Of Interport Fours Should Have Voice

(By "Sagax")

There is nothing further about the arrangements for the forthcoming Interport Lawn Bowls matches with Shanghai towards the end of our season as there has not yet been sufficient time in which to receive a reply from the North. The results of last Friday's meeting have been communicated to the Shanghai Lawn Bowls Association and as soon as a definite reply is received as to the date of the arrival in the Colony of the Northerners a programme will be drawn up.

As intimated last Saturday there is little to add to what had appeared in the Press of the meeting, but there is one thing I would like to say about the Selection Committee. At present the committee contains the names of many well-known bowlers in the Colony and players who have, and are still, in constant touch with other bowlers. Like the Council, who elected the Committee, I have every confidence in its ability to select the best players available but I think the composition of the Committee might have been slightly improved upon by the inclusion of the three players who are to skip the Colony rinks.

It is not too late even now as, when the composition of the rinks is being considered, the skips who will naturally be the first to be selected might be co-opted onto the committee for their advice, which, I think, would be invaluable. If this is done there need only be two more additional members, as I have no doubt that U. M. Omar will be one of the first choices for the position of skip. The other two will most probably be A. M. Holland and C. G. Silva.

No better assistance can be given the Selection Committee than the advice of the skips who, after all, are the men who should know which players they would prefer included in their rinks.

LAST WEEK'S LEAGUE GAMES

The defeat last Saturday of the Club de Recreo by the Kowloon Bowling Green came as no surprise as the parent club are a difficult side to beat on their own green. The Craigengower C. C. have now returned to the top of the table and there is every prospect of them remaining there.

To-morrow, the Portuguese team will have their work cut out to beat the Indian R. C. at Sockunpo, where the green difficulties have defeated many a visiting team this season.

The Kowloon Bowling Green Club were the first to fall and since then the Craigengower C. C. have been the only visitors to have beaten the Indians.

The two Craigengower teams are due to meet to-day and the "A" combination should again beat their juniors.

Old Directors Re-Elected

At times during the annual meeting of the Tottenham Hotspur Football Club last month uproar prevailed between rival sections—the loyal shareholders and members of the Shareholders' Association—but the proceedings terminated with the malcontents assuring the directors of their loyalty.

On a show of hands the two retiring directors, Messrs. George Cox and Wagstaffe Simmons, were re-elected by 81 votes to 44 received by their opponents, Messrs. Grimkitt and Berry, who were nominated by the Shareholders' Association.

OPEN DAY'S PLAY AT WIMBLEDON

How Vivian McGrath Beat Wilmer Allison

London, June 25.
Wimbledon opened sensationally as well as sultrily. After Perry had scored an easy win against the French Canadian, Rainville, on the Centre Court, a seeded player and America's No. 1, Allison to wit, was beaten in four sets. He was seeded No. 5, and his conqueror was the young Australian, McGrath, the second string in singles of a country which is already out of the Davis Cup, beaten by Germany in the European zone semi-final when McGrath did not win either of the matches which he played against Von Cramm and Henkel. He is a variable player, very formidable when his famous two-handed backhanders are coming off, but apt otherwise to be vulnerable on both wings.

Yesterday he played, except for a brief spell towards the close of the match, as well as he has ever played in England and thoroughly deserved his win. But I feel bound to say that Allison was not in the dominant vein in which we have seen him so often both in singles and doubles at Wimbledon. There were times when, though he played finely at others, it seemed that nothing would go right; drives would stray beyond the lines often only by inches, smashes would dive for the bottom of the net, and drop shots would either be pulled up by the same obstacle or else pitch somewhere near the service line for McGrath to sprint up and slay them.

In the first two sets which he lost (6-4, 6-3), Allison made the mistake of attacking McGrath's backhand too often, and of trying to volley after having attacked it, for McGrath's backhand passing shots were positively deadly in their unexpectedness. In the third set Allison played more on McGrath's forehand and went in more successfully on shots to that side or down the centre. McGrath nevertheless reached 4-2, and Allison was a bit lucky to win his own service for 4-3, but he fairly achieved the next service break to make him 5-6.

AN EXTRAORDINARY SET

McGrath got another 'chance' when he won Allison's service for 7-6 (after 40-15), but Allison retaliated, helped by a lucky net-corder, and got out at 9-7 on his second set point. Then came an extraordinary set. McGrath seemed to have got the complete mastery when he won four games with the loss of only two points and added yet another before he was checked. But the check, when it happened, was a complete one. McGrath actually won the next seven games for the set and match. He made a complete recovery, and fortune undoubtedly favoured him. Allison leading by 5-3 and serving had a set point for 6-3, but served a double fault and then lost the game.

In the next game he had another set point, but lost it finally by banging an easy kill into the net when McGrath was at 'vantage'. This put McGrath, as it were, well up to windward, and he won the next two games for 7-5 in determined fashion. The match lasted for about an hour and three-quarters.

Austin, like Perry, had a comfortable win. He described his match with Avery to me as just the right sort of game for two friends to indulge in on a hot afternoon. Both are Cambridge Blues of eminence.

WIN FOR CHAMPIONS

Champions of last season, Lancashire, won a convincing victory against Gloucestershire when playing at Manchester, the home side winning by 111 runs, their second innings yielding 138. Notts made 336, of which Lilley contributed 102. In their second innings they made eight runs, with out loss. Heavy scoring by Leicestershire in their second innings in their match against Sir Lindsay Parkin's eleven at Leicester enabled the hosts to win by nine wickets.

Sir Lindsay's side scored 186 runs while Leicestershire replied with a total of 246. Macdonald had five for 73. George Headley, the West Indian cricketer rattled up a century for Sir Lindsay's eleven in the second innings which realised 327 runs. "The Black Bradman" had 134 runs against his name.

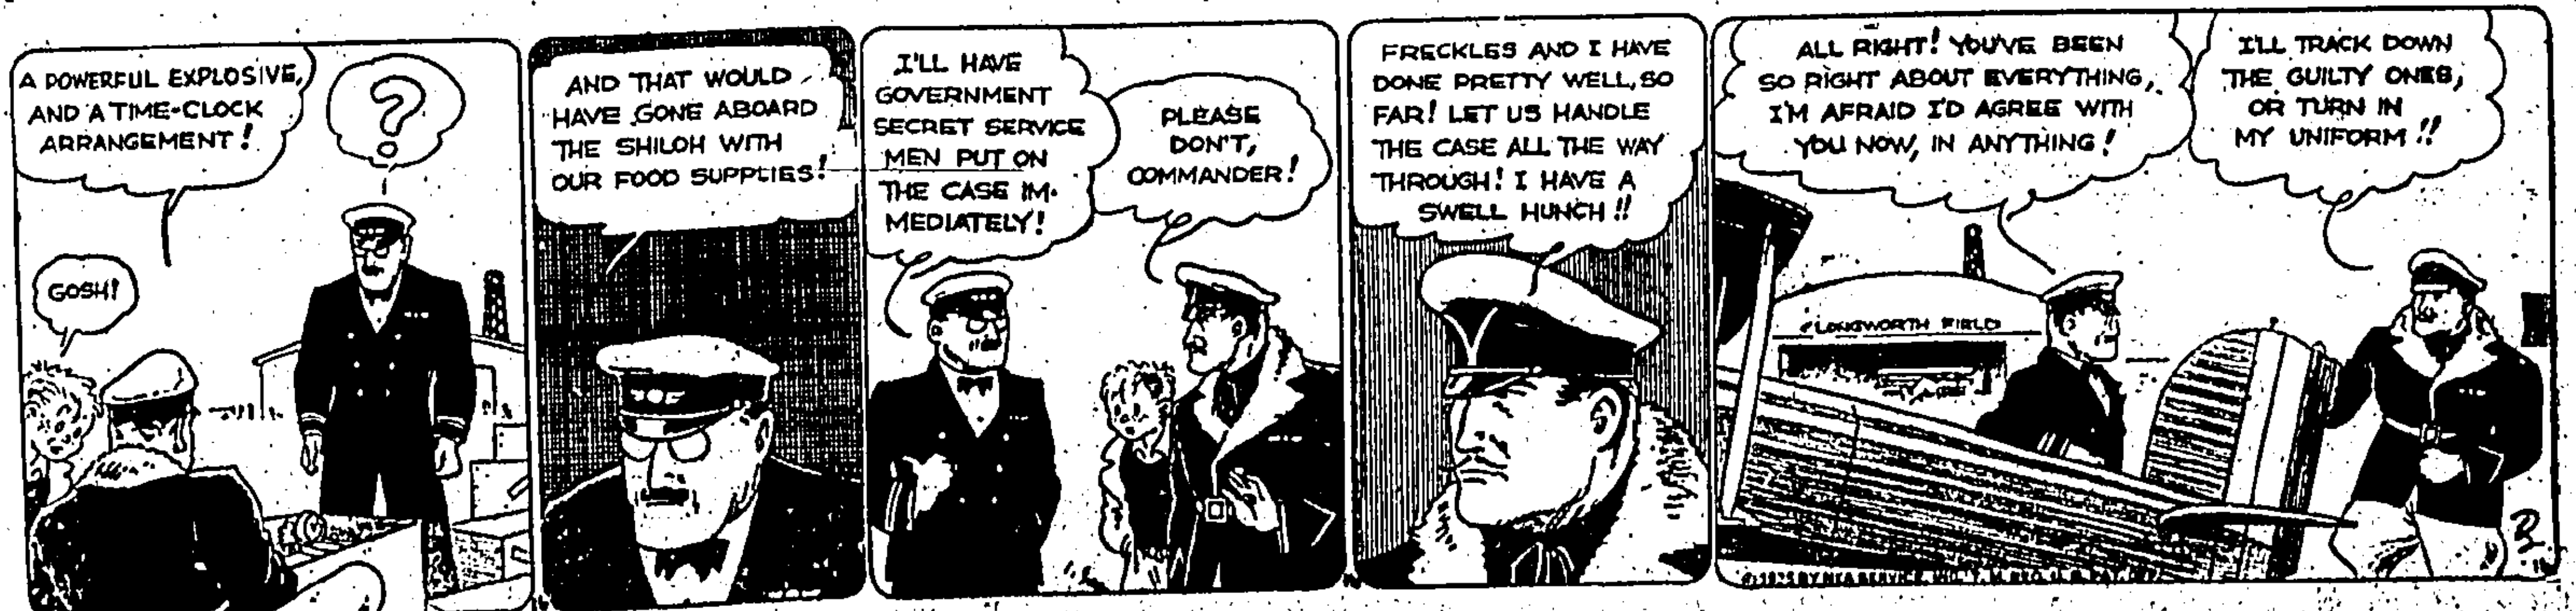

However, an unbroken partnership between Armstrong and Berry enabled Leicestershire to win by nine wickets, scoring 268 for one. Armstrong was not out with 184 runs and Berry not out with 118.—Reuter.

JAPANESE SENSATION

FOREIGN OFFICE STATEMENT

Tokyo, July 19.

The Ethiopian controversy, especially that portion dealing with whether the Japanese Minister to Rome, Mr. Yotaro Sugimura, has exceeded his authority in assuring Signor Mussolini that Japan would not interfere in the Italo-Abyssinian dispute, is overshadowing all other news in Tokyo newspapers.

The Nichi Nichi alleges that Mr. Sugimura misunderstood the Foreign Office's instructions to all diplomatic representatives, saying that they should observe caution and watchfulness in all international observations. The newspaper added that the Japanese Minister, by his act in informing Signor Mussolini that the Foreign Office had instructed him to tell Italy that Japan had no political interest in the Italo-Abyssinian dispute, had placed the Foreign Office in a "peculiar position."

However, continued Nichi Nichi, the Foreign Office was apparently giving less attention to the matter than were the newspapers.

Interviewed to-day, a spokesman of the Foreign Office said that no cabled instructions had been sent to the Japanese Minister in Rome regarding the Italo-Abyssinian situation, and Mr. Sugimura has been asked for a detailed report of his statements to Signor Mussolini.

Asked whether Mr. Sugimura was likely to be transferred from Rome because he had exceeded his instructions, the Foreign Office spokesman replied: "I think not."

It is revealed that Mr. Sugimura was authorised last October to dispel whatever suspicions Italy might entertain regarding Japan's interests in Abyssinia. Hence, it appears that the Minister, without later instructions visited Signor Mussolini on his own initiative.

The Foreign Office spokesman said that Japan was still watching the Italo-Abyssinian controversy with the greatest interest, to "see how the League of Nations and the signatories to the Kellogg Pact will handle the matter."

It was noticeable that the remarks uttered by the Foreign Office spokesman were carefully guarded, and he neither approved nor contradicted the policies which Mr. Sugimura had conveyed to Signor Mussolini.

The Nichi Nichi predicts that the Foreign Office will shortly issue a statement clarifying the position. However, such a procedure is, so far, not indicated.—United Press.

Keen Interest

Tokyo, July 19.

A foreign Office spokesman said that the Japanese Government was watching the development of the Italo-Abyssinian dispute with grave concern, and was paying close attention to the attitude of the signatories of the Kellogg Pact and the League of Nations towards the controversy.

It is understood that when he went to Rome in October the Japanese Ambassador was authorised by the Japanese Govern-

Rubinstein's Second Recital

(To The Editor, Hongkong Telegraph)

Sir,—After a successful series of twelve recitals in Manila, Arthur Rubinstein is coming back to the Colony to give one other recital here. It will take place next Wednesday, the 24th inst., at 9.30 p.m., at the Hongkong Hotel Roof Garden.

The notice is again short, but in view of the wonderful support given to him when he last played here, and the enthusiasm his recital aroused, I feel sure that his second concert will be as successful as the first.

The programme includes a Beethoven Sonata, a Chopin group, Rhapsody and Waltzes by Brahms, Stravinsky's Petroushka Suite, and some Spanish pieces. I hope that all music lovers will book the date, in view of the fact that there was not enough accommodation at his last recital, it would be well to book tickets in advance at the Hotel.

CHAPTER XXVI

The grim-faced men met Michael on the steps. "You're Heather?"

"I am," Michael faced them easily. There was a casual pose about the tall young man in the worn tweeds. The elder of the strangers said, "Born at Castle Donegal in Ballymeena?"

Michael shrugged his broad shoulders. "I was born in Ireland. My father never said."

"Raised at Bar-X ranch, five miles out of a town called Watson's Gully, Montana?" the man pursued, quite as if the other had not spoken.

"What's this all about?" Michael asked, with a hint of steel in his quiet voice. "I find you fellows in full charge of my house, asking questions, taking possession without my leave or—"

"Hold your horses, young fellow!" the heavier, taller of the two intruders interrupted. "We're orders to find a Michael Heather, aged 26, born to Francis Albert Drayton Heather and his wife, Muriel, at Donegal in Ireland."

"Well, I've told you I'm he," said Michael in some impatience and, it would seem, disgust. "What about it?"

"Much about it, young fellow!" the taller, taller of the two intruders interrupted. "We're orders to find a Michael Heather, aged 26, born to Francis Albert Drayton Heather and his wife, Muriel, at Donegal in Ireland."

"You've come into money, and that's the straight of it. 'Tisn't often we get a job like this and get the back of y' head for it, like. Mostly it's crooks we're after—we're a very well known firm, d'ye see?" He extended, between a rather soiled finger and thumb, a business card which Michael accepted with every evidence of distrust.

"Malley & Gerhardt, detectives," he read aloud. "All right, Malley & Gerhardt, tell me about it."

"That's talking," approved the elder, motioning his partner to a seat. "They come to us in Omaha where we have our headquarters. They says, 'Find this young Heather if you can.'"

"What's they?" demanded Michael impatiently.

"The English fellows. Two of them. 'Solicitors,' they call themselves. Seems they'd been in Watson's Gully and nobody knew hair nor hide about where y'd taken off to. Said y'd picked up and bent it last year when y'd partner made off with the money."

"Oh, they did, did they?"

"We traced ye to Texas," continued Mr. Malley, crossing one plump leg over the other and allowing the ashes of his cigar to sift carelessly all over the floor of the porch. "We lost it there for a while. Y'd a job there for some months, saved y'r money and were sober, they said—"

LAI'D TO REST

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MRS. N. J. PERRIN

There was a large attendance, which included a number of prominent residents, at the funeral of the late Mrs. Phyllis Perrin, wife of Mr. N. J. Perrin, local manager of Messrs. Thomas Cook and Son, Limited, which took place at the Protestant Cemetery, Happy Valley, yesterday evening. The Rev. H. W. Baines officiated at the graveside.

The chief mourner was the husband, who followed the cortege accompanied by Mr. F. H. Loseby and Mr. T. M. Hazelrigg.

Others present included Messrs. T. S. Whyte-Smith, D. Drummond, A. Brockett, E. Costello, A. Wheeler, J. Brett, J. Jenkins, F. A. Mackintosh, F. P. Franklin, M. K. Lo, D. H. Hazell, D. H. Blake, D. C. Wilson, D. J. Nooy, K. Watanabe, Sverre Berg, A. K. Dimond, C. D. Lambert, I. B. Trevor, W. C. Clark, H. A. Lammer, G. Lammer, E. F. Soprani, E. Kinsey, Major R. D. Walker, Dr. A. P. Greaves, Miss A. M. Williams, Miss C. Gill, Messrs. R. E. Hyndman, H. C. Woo, W. K. Lam, C. See Toh, A. d'Azevedo, S. L. Wong, Chan, Cheng and many others.

Two beautiful wreaths, one from "Norman" (husband) and the other from "Mother" were interred with the remains.

Among the many floral tributes laid on the grave was one from His Excellency the Officer Administrator, the Government, Sir Thomas Southern, and Lady Southern.

Other wreaths were sent by the following:—David, and Naomi; Aunt Grace; "Geen," Kay, Len, Nan and Ken, Uncle Percy and Aunt Grace, Pat, Rosa and Frank, Tui and Suerre.

Ena, Veronica, Gladys and Laurie Allen, Vivienne Blackburn, M. Clark, Miss G. M. Cotton, Miss K. P. Curtin, Miss Grace Ezra, Eva Finlay, Misses L. Lee, C. Gill and A. M. Williams, Delinda L. Lopes, Evelyn S. Woolley;

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Andrewes; Mr. and Mrs. A. Baker (Shanghai); Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Blackford; Mr. and Mrs. A. Brockett; Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Child; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cloke (Tientsin);

"All right, all right, now you've got me. Where do we go from here?" demanded Michael. "Not that I put much stock in this inheritance yarn. It sounds fishy. Nobby," he added with a darkening face, "ever gave me a penny. It sounds like a pipe dream."

"It's no pipe dream if you're the sole heir of Francis Albert Drayton Heather," pronounced the detective with unctuous, since was the younger son of a lord. Put that in your pipe and smoke it! His older brother inherited the place—seems like they're partly English. They've 'holdings,' the solicitor fellows said, in England, too. Anyhow, in June this older brother died. He was," said the detective, consulting a slip of paper he had flashed from his wallet, "named Hilary Edward Heather, Lord Carden."

Something flashed across Michael's face, hitherto dark and unresponsive. "Ah, you've heard of me, haven't you?" he murmured. "Malley triumphantly. He was finding this client an extremely irritating subject. What he expected he could not have said, but something like enthusiasm, at least. It was every day in the week, he told himself, that you walked up to a feller and told him he had come into a castle and a title and God knew what-all. Not that it meant much on this side of the pond; titles were going begging, from all he'd heard. Still it was something. This kid couldn't seem to get the idea."

"I have heard it before," Michael said slowly. "There was a crest—on a scrap of paper in my father's collar box. I remember asking about it when I was a kid. My father said, 'I remember, that the Cardens had always had it, since the Wars of the Roses or something.'"

"He died—when?" queried Mr. Gerhardt who had been silent up to this very moment. Michael stared at him, considerably.

"When I was 10. My mother a year later. I was raised—I grew up, mean—on the place."

"Well, that's the story," finished Mr. Malley with relief. "Now we can turn ye over to Mister James William Downrigg of London, England, and collect ours. It's been a long drag, Tom," he told his partner, "but we always get our man."

Gerhardt nodded. They both eyed Michael curiously.

Malley rose with some ceremony. "Well, we'll get in touch with Downrigg to-night. He's at the Waldorf. Don't go away, young fellow—"

Michael grinned. "I won't pal. Thanks for the trouble."

"That's the stuff," Malley's great paw came out and whacked the tweed-covered shoulder resoundingly. "Sure, it wouldn't be natural if ye didn't get a kick out of it. And the papers will have it to-morrow, I'll be bound. Or the next day anyway. Y'll have reporters on yer doorstep."

A shadow crossed the young man's face.

"Yo don't like the notion much?" "Not reporters—no. A nuisance."

"Well, well, it's all in the day's work," averred Mr. Malley comfortably. "If they should happen to ask and they will, no doubt about it—mention our names. Malley & Gerhardt. Second National Bank Building, Omaha, Nebraska. We always get our man."

Presently they left in a cab ordered over Michael's telephone. The young man watched them stow their things, satisfied away in it. There was a puzzled look, almost a disturbed one, on his sunburned face.

Then Michael went into the shabby living room where riding crops and week-old newspapers mingled with pipes and dust and disorder over which Clarence, his father, never seemed to gain control.

Michael stared at the room with some distant as he jiggled the telephone receiver. He was trying to fit into it the picture of Katharine with her smooth, fair head, her exquisite skin, her delicate shoes and frocks and the scent that always clung about her. It was fantastic. . . . the afternoon's happenings themselves were sheer fantasy.

"Innocent 0021? May I speak to Miss Stryker, please?"

He grinned to himself. That wasn't really her name. But only he and a shabby minister and a woman with floured hands were aware of it. Katharine—Lady Carden. Lady Katharine of Donegal Castle. Would she like that? Oh, it was a pipe-dream, a bubble that would presently burst.

Her cool voice on the telephone. A voice soft and sure and real like herself.

"Darling, this is me."

She had to be careful—he knew that. "Yes," she said. "Yes."

"It's all right," Michael told her, speaking low. "It's perfectly all right. They were thieves, but they had good news for me. Can't tell you now."

"Michael, I'm frightened of what we've done." Her voice came hurriedly, almost broken. "I must see you. Oh, I can't talk now. Someone's coming."

He had to ring off then. Had to be content with that. Perhaps she would call him later.

He was going out into the stable yard, hands in pockets, brooding over the strange day he had just lived through, when Sally came rushing up to him.

"Michael, precious!" she cried. "Daddy says there's just no use your saying you can't get away. He's got a man to put in charge. We can leave for South America any moment."

He stared at her. He had forgotten her completely.

But Sally would not allow herself to be so easily forgotten. She was a force to be reckoned with—and soon.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

The play in to-day's hand is not unusual, but is very often overlooked by the novice.

S—K-9-3
WEST H—K-10-8-6-4 S—10-7-
S—J-8-4 D—6-7-4 E

D—7-2 3
C—A-9-9 SOUTH—DEALER D—5-2
S—A-9-6
H—7-8-2
D—A-8-3
C—K-10-8-5

The Bidding

South, the dealer, opened the contract with one no trump, West passed. North went to four diamonds, showing his partner no desire to play the hand at no trump and purely a pre-emptive bid with hopes of going game in diamonds. This shuts out East's heart bid and South carries the contract to five diamonds.

The Play

Holding a suit headed by ace, king, the king is led to show the ace, therefore East opens with the king of hearts, which the declarer trumps with the four of diamonds. It looks to the declarer as though he must lose three club tricks, but with the proper split in diamonds, the declarer will attempt to strip the hand and force a club lead. One round of diamonds is taken, the declarer leading the king. The next lead by declarer is a small spade which is won in the dummy with the queen. The seven of hearts is returned from dummy and trumped by declarer with the nine of diamonds.

Declarer leads the six of diamonds, East discarding the four of hearts, dummy winning the trick with the eight of diamonds. The last heart from dummy is led and trumped by declarer with the ten of diamonds. A small spade is led to dummy's ace and the six of spades returned, which declarer wins with the king.

Declarer's next lead is the eight of clubs, East plays the deuce and dummy plays the three of clubs which West wins with the nine of clubs. If he leads a heart or a spade the declarer will discard a club and ruff in dummy with the ace, granting his opponents the last club trick.

By stripping the hand and leaving one trump in dummy, then throwing the lead, the declarer has successfully made his contract of five diamonds scoring game and 100 for honours.

CHINA AND ANNAM

TERMS OF NEW TREATY TO BE ANNOUNCED

Nanking, July 19.
An agreement having been reached with the French Government, the new Sino-Annamite Treaty will be simultaneously published in Nanking and Paris on July 21. It is learned from diplomatic sources to-day.
This treaty, it will be recalled, was rectified by the governments of the two countries some time ago following protracted negotiations.
Mr. Hsiao Chi-lung, Counsellor of the Chinese Embassy at Paris, was appointed as the Chinese delegate to conduct the negotiations.—Central News Agency.

BRITISH EFFORTS

London, July 19.
The British Government continues actively engaged, through diplomatic exchange in Rome and Paris, in its efforts to discover a means for direct, peaceful settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute.

These efforts will certainly be continued until success is achieved or until the matter comes before the League Council. In the latter event it is hoped that Italy, as well as Abyssinia, will be prepared to submit a full and complete statement in order that the Council shall be fully informed upon all the facts in the case.

Members of the Council have been asked to hold themselves in readiness to attend a meeting which may be summoned at the end of the month.—British Wireless.

TREADS CAREFULLY

Washington, July 19.
The Italo-Abyssinian situation has placed the State Department in one of the most difficult positions since the Japanese invasion of China, when Mr. Henry Stimson, then Secretary of State, had to retreat from the insistent attitude taken in that connection.

This experience is believed to be tempering Mr. Cordell Hull's attitude in the present impasse.

Observers point out that outside Mr. Hull's indication of a desire for the observance of the Kellogg Pact, and a natural desire for world peace, there has been little discussion on the agreement outlawing war.

There has been some discussion of the possibility of the United States invoking the Kellogg pact, but observers see little likelihood, first, because the pact cannot be invoked before beginning of hostilities and secondly because of some doubt whether it could be invoked without a formal declaration of war.—United Press.

HUEY LONG'S MESSAGE

PROMISES TO START
TALKING AGAIN

Washington, July 18.
Senator Huey P. Long to-day informed colleagues who may be feeling worried about his long absence, that they could pass on to the Chambers that he would be back to-morrow, and was going to make a speech.

"I am going to try and get the floor as soon as I return, in order to speak on the issues of the day," Senator Long, will, however, find a change in the procedure of the Senate, under which a limit can be placed upon the length of the debates.—United Press.

TENNIS LEAGUES CONTINUED

CHINESE WIN ALL
NINE SETS

"D" DIVISION

Taking advantage of the fine weather quite a number of tennis League matches were played off. In the "D" Division I.R.C. defeated the Civil Service, and another interesting match was the C.R.C. rout of the K.C.C. "B" team in the mixed doubles.

I.R.C. WIN

In their "C" Division match the Indian Recreation Club defeated the Civil Service Club by five and a half sets to three and a half. The scores were:

Colledge and N. J. Bobbington (C.S.C.C.) lost to A. K. Minu and H. Hassan, 4-6; beat M. U. Razack and A. Babu, 6-3; lost to D. M. Ragul and M. I. Razack, 3-6. J. Skinner and A. L. Fisher (C.S.C.C.) tied with Minu and Hassan, 6-6; beat Razack and Babu, 6-4; beat Ragul and Razack, 6-3. Korman and Agafuroff (C.S.C.C.) lost to Minu and Hassan 4-6; lost to Razack and Babu, 4-6; lost to Ragul and Razack, 2-6.

"D" DIVISION

Several matches in the "D" Division of the Hongkong Lawn Tennis League were played off yesterday. The C.R.C., playing on their own courts, won comfortably from the South China Athletic Association, taking all nine sets. The scores were: F. C. Liang and L. F. Tin (C.R.C.) beat T. Wong and Liang Yau-hung, 6-2; beat C. M. Tsang and C. M. Chang 6-2; beat W. T. Liang and Lau Man, 6-1.

D. K. Liang and Y. K. Ping (C.R.C.) beat Wong and Liang 6-3; beat Tsang and Chang, 6-3; beat Liang and Lau, 6-4. H. P. Chan and P. F. Lee (C.R.C.) beat Wong and Liang, 6-2; beat Tsang and Chang, 6-1; beat Liang and Lau, 6-2.

ARMY BEATEN

Playing at Sokunpoo yesterday the Army Tennis Club were beaten by the Radio Sport Club by six sets to three. The scores were:

J. H. Fowler and J. T. Davies (A.T.C.) lost to W. J. Chan and H. Ritchie, 4-6; lost to M. Sherriff and D. Leonard, 1-6; beat G. Singh and Kramail Singh, 6-4. W. F. Miller and E. T. Taylor (A.T.C.) lost to Chan and Ritchie, 2-6; lost to Sherriff and Leonard, 4-6; beat G. Singh and K. Singh, 7-5; beat G. Singh and B. Turner (A.T.C.) beat Chan and Ritchie, 6-2; lost to Sherriff and Leonard, 2-6; lost to G. Singh and K. Singh, 2-6.

K.C.C. DEFEAT THE K.F.C.

Playing on their own grounds yesterday afternoon the Kowloon Cricket Club defeated the Kowloon Football Club by seven sets to two in a "D" Division League tennis match.

Philippens and D. S. Green (K.C.C.) beat A. S. Bliss and C. Fuller 6-3; drew with G. Winch and G. White 6-6; beat D. Knox and V. White 6-1. V. H. Freeman and L. E. Kirby (K.C.C.) beat Bliss and Fuller 6-3; beat G. Winch and G. White 6-1; beat D. Knox and V. White 6-0. D. Orr and R. J. K. Walker (K.C.C.) lost to Bliss and Fuller 4-6; drew with Winch and G. White 6-6; beat Knox and White 7-5.

MATCH UNPLAYED

The tennis match arranged between the Kowloon Bowling Green Club and the Kowloon Dock Recreation Club was not played yesterday.

MIXED DOUBLES

The Kowloon Cricket Club mixed doubles "B" team was defeated by the Chinese Recreation Club when they met yesterday afternoon by 8½ sets to half a set. The match was played on the K.C.C. grounds.

C. E. Watson and Mrs. White (K.C.C.) lost to Ho Ka-lau and Mrs. Litton 2-6; lost to Lee Wai-tong and Miss Rumjahn 3-6.

PRISONER'S DEATH

ELDERLY MAN'S VARIETY OF DISEASES

The death of a prisoner, Pun Kwong, aged 67 years, formed the subject of an inquest conducted by Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen, sitting as Coroner, at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon, assisted by the following jury—Messrs. A. F. Walkden (Foreman), A. L. Cunningham and D. C. S. Alves.

Chief Warder H. Barrett stated that the prisoner, No. 12941, was admitted to Victoria Gaol on January 18, sentenced to undergo six weeks' consecutive hard labour. On May 11 he was transferred to Laichikok Prison, and on July 8 was admitted to the hospital there. On July 18 he was transferred to Victoria Gaol hospital, where he died yesterday at 3.55 a.m.

Dr. G. H. Henry, medical officer of Laichikok Prison, testified that deceased was suffering from diarrhoea when admitted to the prison hospital on July 18. The following day he was treated for bacillary dysentery. On the night of July 17 his condition became worse and the following morning witness had the patient transferred to Victoria Gaol hospital. Witness did not then diagnose any other trouble.

In Poor Condition

Deceased was found previously to be suffering from chronic heart disease, chronic opium poisoning and his general condition was very poor. On admission to prison and to the hospital his weight was only 97 pounds.

Witness added, in reply to the Coroner, that deceased was suffering from enteritis, which had a resemblance to bacillary dysentery. The enteritis might have had tubercular origin. There was nothing to show that there was anything wrong with the food or conditions of the prison. Dr. G. Ingram Shaw, medical officer of Victoria Gaol, testified to the post mortem examination which he conducted. The cause of death was found to be a combination of various conditions, namely, hypostatic pneumonia, pulmonary tuberculosis of the chronic type, mitral valvular disease and enteritis.

The jury declined to view the body, the Coroner remarking that he had already done so.

A verdict of death from natural causes was returned.

TO STOP SMUGGLING

SPECIAL DEPARTMENT FORM-ED AT SHANGHAI

Shanghai, July 19.
For the better and closer co-operation between the Customs, Salt and Mineral Revenue Administrations in the prevention of smuggling, and to lessen expenses, the Ministry of Finance has decided to establish a joint smuggling prevention office in Shanghai shortly.

The three administrations concerned, it is learned, are following the instructions of the Ministry of Finance which called a joint meeting here several days ago. This was attended by many important members of the Ministry.

The regulations governing the new office have been drafted and submitted by Mr. Tsa Pu and it will be enforced as soon as it is approved by Dr. H. H. Kung, the Minister of Finance.—Central News Agency.

Mrs. T. F. Lau 0-6; drew with W. C. Hung and Miss R. Rumjahn 6-6. G. Heese and Mrs. Knight (K.C.C.) lost to Ho Ka-lau and Mrs. Litton 2-6; lost to Lee Wai-tong and Mrs. T. F. Lau 3-6; lost to W. C. Hung and Miss Rumjahn 1-6. A. W. Ramsey and Mrs. Kirby (K.C.C.) lost to Ho Ka-lau and Mrs. Litton 1-6; lost to Lee Wai-tong and Mrs. Lau 3-6; lost to W. C. Hung and Miss Rumjahn 3-6.

BROOK'S CRASH

UNINJURED BUT MACHINE WRECKED

Alexandria, July 19.

Forced in pitch darkness to make a landing and unable to locate the aerodrome, H. L. Brook, Yorkshire amateur pilot who left Lympne Aerodrome on Thursday in an attempt to break Amy Molison's record flight to the Mersa Matruh, Egypt, the same day.

Brook's machine was completely wrecked but he miraculously escaped injury sustaining only bruises and slight contusions.

When the flier's Miles Falcon machine, in which he established a record flight from Australia to England after the Centenary race, was reported overdue, it was thought that he had probably run out of petrol and had been forced to make a landing.

This turned out to be true for it was with only a few pints of petrol in his tank that Brook approached Mersa Matruh after darkness had fallen.

He was unable to locate the aerodrome however, though it was only a short distance away. Despairing of his object, he risked all and made a chance landing.

Young in Flying
The mishap definitely stalls his opportunity of attacking the record for some time, and Amy's time of four days and six hours still stands.

Brooks has had a notable career for one who qualified for his licence only a couple of years ago.

He had had luck in the Centenary race, taking 26 days to make the distance.

Flying along on the return trip from Darwin to Kent, Brook was able to carry more fuel in his machine and despite a number of landings and take-offs in the dark, to maintain the schedule he had mapped out for himself.

Fortune favoured him in his flight and he broke young Melrose's record by thirteen hours, setting up the new record of seven days, twenty hours.

Mr. Brook is an accountant by profession and is 32 years of age.
